The disobedient little girls.

Numéro d'inventaire : 1979.32704
Type de document : image imprimée
Imprimeur : Humoristic Publishing Co
Période de création : 4e quart 19e siècle
Date de création : 1880 (vers)
Description : Planche de 16 images (71 x 60) en couleurs avec légende. Papier et ruban adhésif collés au dos pour renforcer la planche.
Mesures : hauteur : 378 mm ; largeur : 294 mm
Notes : Des petites filles désobéissantes sont victimes de leurs frasques. Image imprimée provenant des Etats-Unis et du même type que les images populaires françaises contemporaines.
Mots-clés : Images hors France actuelle
Les mythes de l'enfance, l'enfant roi, l'enfant canaille, l'enfant prodige, etc.
Filière : aucune
Niveau : aucun
Autres descriptions : Langue : Français
Nombre de pages : 1
Mention d'illustration
ill. en coul.

THE DISOBEDIENT LITTLE GIRLS 27

Adele teases the dog and he bites her.

She goes too near the chimney and her dress catches fire.

Bertha goes for a walk in the wood without her nurse and loses herself.

They take her out of the pond into which she had fallen, while heedlessly playing near.

Clara upsets on her dress a basket of eggs, which she held carelessly.

She amuses herself by the edge of a pond, and the ducks eat the pastry that she had been to fetch.

Elise in chasing butterflies, tramples on the flower beds, and does great mischief in the garden.

She sets fire to a wasp's nest and is soon covered with stings.

Emma meddles with her father's tools, and cuts her fingers.

She ventures in the midst of a herd of cattle, and they knock her over.

Fanny, surprised by the storm, can scarcely find the road to the house.

She scratches her face and her arms, in trying to get bird's nests.

Louise is sent away from church on account of her giddiness.

She mischievously rings the bell, and some one throws a pail of water on her head.

When Julia goes on any errands, she hurts herself at each step, for want of attention.

Her thoughtlessness is the cause of her getting a needle into her hand.

"Printed expressly for the Humoristic Publishing Co, Kansas City, Mo."