The farm

a lane
to allow the carts to pass

who try to enter

to

the farmer's crops
are sheltered -

The farm that I see everyday is placed along a small road, broad enough to leave the carts pass by. You enter it by a rusted grate ~~of~~ each side of it are two big dogs, one white and the other black, that bite the strangers (that they do not know.) Before you is the farm-yard, full of poultry eating the small seeds fallen at the last threshing. There is also a pool in which many ducks swim. The cows come to the pool to drink the dirty water. On each side are the farm-buildings. There is the barn where the farmer houses the crops during the winter. Under the barn, in a great shed are the carts and the agricultural machinery, the plough, the heavy roller, the mechanical reaper and, now and then reaping-machine.
