A SECOND ENGLISH BOOK

By WALTER RIPMAN

THIS volume continues the work of the First English Book. It contains a number of stories: first some fables, the legends of Dick Whittington and Rip van Winkle, and then stories from real life. They are supplied with foot-notes in which the new words are explained and the meaning is made clear; and there are full exercises to each lesson, consisting of questions on the subject-matter and on the vocabulary, exercises in grammar, and suggestions for free composition. In the First and Second English Books exceptional care has been devoted to the vocabulary; and in the latter volume will be found a special section containing the words that occur in both books arranged according to their meaning. The words occurring in the Second English Book are also given in alphabetical order, with phonetic transcription. Finally, there are a number of fables and poems under the heading "Easy Reading"; these have explanatory foot-notes, but no exercises.
