LITTLE GIRL: Mummy, I am hungry!

MOTHER: Do you want a cake?

LITTLE GIRL: Yes, mummy, please. A nice cake with lots of cream!

MOTHER: Do you want to sit down and have some tea, or shall we just buy some cakes and eat them in the garden?

LITTLE GIRL: Let's buy some cakes and take them with us; then we can take some to Jennifer, and we can eat them while we play.

we play.

MOTHER: Does Jennifer like cakes, or do you think she would like a slice of apple pie?

you think she would like a slice of apple pie?

LITTLE GIRL: Oh, she likes cakes all right; she is always eating cakes:

MOTHER: Could I have some cakes please?

SHOP ASSISTANT: What kind of cakes do you prefer?

MOTHER: I'll have two chocolate éclairs, two strawberry tarts and two of those cakes topped with whipped cream.

SHOP ASSISTANT: Anything else, madam?

MOTHER: Yes. I would like two small bars of chocolate and half a pound of fruit drops. Will you please pack the cakes so that they don't get squashed?

SHOP ASSISTANT: I am packing them in a cardboard tray with a strip of cardboard over them. Don't worry, they will be all right.
