A suspicious stranger.

And this is what one of his friends
said to us:

told might

When Bonow came out of the inn of Lernmaes, the Welshmen had thought that it would be good to tell this strange story to the other men of the village.
And they continued to speak of this strange man, coming into an inn and writing on paper, looking at every thing in the room. One of these men seeing one of his friend related that : « We where speaking in the inn when suddenly a man came in. But the lad. waiter had said us that a stranger who could be a spy, would enter in a few minutes. And so as soon as he entered, we hold our tongues. If the man
