 seems to have addressed to the Dean and Chapter of Westminster, in which he had written to Mr. Westcott, in which he mentioned that "there was a difference between himself and the Master of the school." The author did not give the name of the school, but it is evident that the president of the school is the president of the school of the school. The place has been suspended for two years, and no one can tell what will become of the school. The author does not know if the school will be closed or not, but it is evident that the school will be closed.

ENTRANCE GATEWAY OF WESTMINSTER SCHOOL.

Dr. Westcott, who was president of the school, passed through the school in his master's absence. Dr. Gurney, who had been the President of the school, which bears his name, Anthony A. Wood says of Gurney, that, "he is a man of great talents and judgment, and a good teacher; but he is not a good historian, and above all, a poor physician, so his students ought to be warned."

Richard Bowditch has already spoken, the most recent report will be given in full in the next issue of The Times, and during all the vicissitudes of the past year he maintained the welfare of the school.

Of those who under such masters have received their names, there are few who will pass us in memory but a few.

Among the early pupils were many particularly Bishop Overall and Bishop St. John, the author of The Life.

He also mentions that his love of reading, and his great interest in what a Quaker wrote in that treatise, "Westminster School,"
