The butterfly that stamped.

Solomon had married nine hundred and ^{ninety} nine wives beside Balkis who was the wisest and the most ^{beautiful} of all the queens; they lived in a golden palace in ^{the middle of} a lovely garden with fountains.

Some of them were nice, but some were horrid, they would quarrel all the time and ^{also} with Solomon.

Balkis loved the king too much to quarrel, she sat in her room or walked in the garden, and she was very sorry for him.

When they quarrelled too much Solomon walked in the palace garden and wished he had never been born
